DIALOGUE WRITING

Dialogue between a teacher and a Student

Teacher: Hello Amna! You are a bit late today

Amna: Yes, Madam I am sorry

Teacher: Well, what happened?

Amna: The school bus was right on schedule. It was about to cross the canal bridge when it came to a half with a jerk. The tire had gone flat

Teacher: I see. It's none of your fault then.

Amna: One thing more, Madam. The driver had no jack with him. He waved to other vehicles, but they would not stop nobody seemed willing to oblige at this rush hour.

Teacher: Well, what did you do then? You came by another bus. Didn't you?

Amna: No, madam, we left the bus where it was and walked to school all the way

Teacher: Well done! You are a brave girl indeed, now, girls let us proceed with our lesson.

Dialogue between Two Students Regarding Prayers

Ahmed: well, now I'd like to take rest for a while. I've had my meal, you know

Anas: Ok. You take rest while I fix this picture of landscape on the wall. Where is the sticky tape?

Ahmed: Out there in the drawer.

Anas: well, I think this picture needs to be a bit higher up. How do you like it Osama?

Ahmed: Lovely! Good, well done. It looks nice up there. Now let us go for prayers to the mosque.

Anas: I am going to the market. I shall not be long

Ahmed: No prayers first. You hear the moezzin's call for prayers? Don't you

Anas: Sure, I do. But I am going out. It's very urgent. My motor bike is out at the gate.

Ahmed: There is nothing in the world that ought to be more urgent than a prayer.

Anas: I don't really understand it. Art is long and life is short. There is so much to do in the world, there is so much.

Fun- games, sports, T.V, cricket, world cups, videos, feature films, fun fairs, shopping, loitering and break and break and break. Sorry, I am going.

Ahmed: Dear me! Who am I hold your back? Dear as you are to me, I sincerely wish you pray. Prayers give us peace, freshness, balance, courage, hope, goodness in our short life here on the earth, and eternal goodness in the life hereafter.

Anas: Oh, I am sick of your sermons, Osama!

Ahmed: See Allah has given us eyes, ears, heart, hands, legs and brains. Salman you see such a lovely world is there around us. Great gifts they are! Aren't they? We must thank Allah- the Merciful, the Sustainer. As Muslims we pray, and this is how we thank Allah

Salman: All right. I fear Allah and I love him too. I'll go with you.

Dialogue Asking One's Way

A: Excuse me troubling you sir, but can you tell me the way to the museum?

B: Certainly, keep straight on along this road, take the first turning to the right and that you will take you to a green square with flagpoles. That is Istanbul Square: cross it, and you'll see a corner of a red-brick building with a couple of domes. That is the museum.

A: Thanks very much indeed

B: My pleasure

(A goes on walking and takes the wrong turn. He wanders around a good deal. Tired and upset, he talks to a passer-by)

A: Pardon me, sir, does this road lead to the museum?

B: I am as sorry, sir, I don't know. I am a complete stranger here myself (Another gentlemen C on hearing the steps)

C: Yes, keep straight this way for over a mile and a half unit you come to chowk Azadi, then turn to the left. But it is a good way.

A: What number or route please.

C: Take number 117 when you come to Chowk Azadi. That will take you to the museum.

A: Thanks.

Dialogue between a Brother and Sister Concerning Time

Ali: What is the time?

Fatimah: It is nearly five minutes to eight by my watch.

Ali: Upon my word, we must hurry up, if you are to catch that train for Rawalpindi.

Fatimah: Why, when is it due out?

Ali: At quarter past nine exactly.

Fatimah: Oh, never mind. We have plenty of time.

Ali: I am not sure of that. What on earth have you been doing? What time did you get up?

Fatimah: I work up before half-past five. Then I performed ablution and said my morning prayer. Now breakfast is ready. Don't look at me like that.

Ali: For heaven's sake, get ready! We have not a minute to lose. Time flies, you know!

Fatimah: Okay! I'm really sorry for delaying. I'm getting ready in five minutes.

Ali: Great!

Dialogue between a Tailor and a Customer

(Father is about to set up the tape-recorder. He is with his children Yaser and Ahmed).

Father: Come over here. Hurry up!

(They show up in a minute)

Father: You are going to hear a dialogue on the tape now.

Ahmed: What is it about Father?

Father: Well, see this picture.

(There is a picture of a tailor and customer. Father switches on the tape recorder. They listen with attention)

Tailor: Good morning sir, what can I do for you?

Customer: I should like to be measured for a suit.

Tailor: With pleasure, sir, and kindly step this way. What style and shade would you prefer?

Customer: I want an ordinary lounge suit made of brown tweed. How much would the stitching cost?

Tailor: I could make you a suit for Rs. 2000. It is quite reasonable, sir.

Customer: That's right

Tailor: Could you manage to call in sometime next week for the try?

Customer: Yes, just give me a ring. Here is my card.

Tailor: Very good Sir, have a good day.

(Father takes out the plug and talks to his kid)

Father: What do you say to that, kids?

Yaser: Very interesting, dad.

Ahmed: Father I'll hear it again and then we practice. Yaser will act out as the tailor and I shall be the customer.

Dialogue between a student who came late to school and his/her teacher

Ali: May I come in, sir?

Teacher: Yes, stand here. Why do you always come late?

Ali: Sir, it is the bus which makes me late.

Teacher: What time do you leave home and how far is your home from here?

Ali: I always leave home at quarter to eight and my home is about three kilometers from here. And then I have to take a bus from stop to reach school.

Teacher: That is why you get late. You leave your home very late.

Ali: Sir, I take my breakfast at 7:30 a.m.

Teacher: What time do you get up?

Ali: I get up at about 7:00 a.m.

Teacher: Don't you offer your prayer?

Ali: Not regularly.

Teacher: My dear. It is a bad habit. Change your routine. Always get up early in the morning. Offer your prayers and go for a morning walk. Then you will never get late for school.

Ali: You are right, sir. From tomorrow, I shall never be late.

Teacher: Good. I hope you will be on time tomorrow. Come and take your seat.

Ali: Thank you very much for your good advice.

Teacher: Oh Yes, of course.

Dialogue between a police officer and a young man regarding the whereabouts of the nearest market

Man: Hello Sir. How are you doing?

Officer: I am good.

Man: Actually, sir I need your little help.

Officer: What's the matter?

Man: Sir I am new in this area, so I don't know much about this society. I want to go to the market. Can you guide me the direction?

Officer: Yes, sure. Keep straight on along this road, take the first turning to the right and that you will take you to a green square with flagpoles. There you will find a big market.

Man: thank you very much indeed.

Officer: My pleasure.

Write a dialogue between two friends regarding ways of improving English language skills

Asad: Hello Harris. How are you?

Harris: I'm fine. What about you?

Asad: I have become serious about learning better English. I am practicing on my pronunciation too.

Harris: Why?

Asad: I want to practice spoken English and better than before.

Harris: Great! It is a good thing.

Asad: Yes, if we want to develop our spoken English, we have to speak in English always.

Harris: it's true. Moreover, we should not think of other's criticism.

Asad: We should also develop our reading and writing habits.

Harris: But how can we do that?

Asad: We can develop reading skill through reading of literature and newspapers. We can develop writing through free writing on familiar topics.

Harris: I have difficulty in understanding English spoken by British or an American.

Asad: It's a problem for me too. But I have developed a lot by listening to BBC.

Harris: But for this we need to know grammar.

Asad: Yes, we cannot avoid it. Grammar is necessary for making the language understandable to all and for better communication.

Harris: Yes, I agree. So, we should start taking online classes.

Asad: That's a great idea. We both can help each other this way.

Harris: Yes, but for now let's go to class. We are getting late.

Asad: Yes, come on.

Dialogue between two friends about the upcoming examination.

Amna: Hello friend, how do you do?

Aleena: I am fine, thank you. Why are you looking so sad?

Amna: Actually, I am worried about my final examination What about your preparation for the examination?

Aleena: Well, I'm going on well my studies. I am also worried about my exam.

Amna: But tell me about your preparation in different subjects.

Aleena: You know I'm weak in English. That's why I'm taking special care in English. I'm having a detailed revision of other subjects.

Amna: Are you taking help from any special books?

Aleena: Yes, but I study textbooks very carefully.

Amna: I see. I must start working with the textbooks. What do you think?

Aleena: Yes. I think it'll be very helpful not only for English but also for other subjects.

Amna: Thank you for your supportive suggestion. I wish you good luck.

Aleena: You are most welcome.

Dialogue between two friends about pollution

Arfa: Hello Saima. How are you?

Saima: Thanks. I am fine. How are you?

Arfa: I am also fine. Where are you going?

Saima: I am going to the society head for requesting him to take necessary steps against environmental pollution.

Arfa: Environment pollution has become a great problem in our life.

Saima: You are right. Though the environment helps us to exist, we don't bother it. We are polluting it indiscriminately.

Arfa: People are not aware of it. They throw their waste here and there.

Saima: Yes, you are right. Our society is small but see how polluted it is. You can see waste everywhere and drainage issues. It is becoming unbearable to live here.

Arfa: Too many vehicles are polluting the air by smoke and fumes. CNG is not allowed in the society but still, local vehicles come here easily.

Saima: Yes, you are right.

Arfa: We should take a step on this. Pollution is going to cause us so many harmful effects. Due to this, so many diseases are spreading, and people are becoming sick because of it.

Saima: You are right. But we should be conscious of it. In most cases, we are not aware of the importance of the environment.

Saima: So, what should we do?

Arfa: We should take care of our environment. It's true that we cannot stop pollution for good. But we can lessen it.

Saima: I agree with you. We all should come forward and take charge of this matter.

Arfa: Come on and let's talk to the members of society.

Saima: Okay.

Dialogue between a father and his son about the importance of Social Media

Father: Good morning son.

Ali: Good morning.

Father: What are you doing?

Ali: I am just completing my homework.

Father: Great! but first come and have breakfast.

Ali: Okay father but can you please help me in my homework. I am stuck at one question and it's difficult.

Father: What is the question?

Ali: Importance of social media.

Father: That is easy son! Social media plays a major role in our daily life. We all are surrounded by technology and media which is creating a greater impact on our minds. Social media keeps us updated regarding all the latest trends, news around the globe and gives freedom of speech.

Ali: Yes.

Father: Every side has two pictures. Where we enjoy the advantages of social media, there are disadvantages too. Excess of social media creates a negative impact on people's mind. It also creates violation among the society. Authentication and validity are the key which is neglected most of the times.

Ali: This means to keep a balance in everything. And we should use social media within the limits.

Father: Yes son.

Ali: Thank you for the help!

Father: No problem son.

Dialogue between a father and his son about the upcoming annual examination

Father: What are you doing?

Ahmad: Nothing father just playing a video game.

Father: I think your exams are nearby.

Ahmad: Yes father. And I am ready for that.

Father: Have you finished everything?

Ahmad: Yeah, I have already revised my lessons several times. I have practiced all the math questions.

Father: That's great. So which grade do you expect?

Ahmad: I am hopeful that I will get A+. I am working hard to score that grade.

Father: Very fine, I also hope so. You also did very well in the SSC exam, and we expect that you will continue that trend.

Ahmad: If everything goes fine then I can meet your expectation.

Father: Mind that this exam is very crucial because your higher study will depend on this result. If you cannot do well in HSSC then you may get a chance for higher study in a reputed university.

Ahmad: That's true and I was serious since the first day in my college.

Father: Another thing that your career will depend on the area of your higher study. So, this result will actually determine your career as well.

Ahmad: Yes, my teacher gave us a lecture on it too and guided us very well.

Father: So, do your best, my son.

Ahmad: Don't worry father. I am fully prepared.

Father: You need to take rest now. You should sleep and wake up early in the morning. Goodnight.

Ahmad: Good night.

Dialogue between two friends on the effect of noise pollution and some solutions to it

Ali: Hello Moosa, how're you?
Moosa: Hi Ali, I'm fine, thanks. What about you?
Ali: I'm fine, too.
Moosa: Thais is a very noisy road indeed.
Ali: Yes. Vehicle horns, construction work sounds etc. are creating noise pollution.
Moosa: Does it affect human health?
Ali: Yes, it does. Unwanted sound can damage physical mental health. Sound pollution can cause irritation and anger, high-stress levels, hearing loss, sleep disturbance and harmful effects.
Moosa: That's horrible.

Ali: Yes, it is. And day by day, the level of sound pollution is increasing in Bangladesh. Soon it'll be too much to tolerate for us.

Moosa: We must take the necessary steps to stop this pollution. But how?

Ali: Yes, sound pollution can be reduced by limiting vehicle speeds and using traffic controls for smooth vehicle flow to reduce hard breaking, over-taking and speeding.

Moosa: What about noise from the industrial sector?

Ali: By using noise-reducing equipment and better materials, sound pollution can be controlled in these sectors.

Moosa: Isn't there any kind of law against this?

Ali: There is a law limiting the level of sound, but people don't obey the law. Most even of them don't know about the law.

Moosa: That's too bad.

Ali: Yes, it is. People should be more conscious about sound pollution in future.

Moosa: I hope that too.

Ali: Anyway, see you later then.

Moosa: Goodbye.

Dialogue between two friends on "The Problems of Drug Addiction in Pakistan"

Ali: Hi Ahmad. How are you?

Ahmad: Not good. I am just worried.

Ali: What happened?

Ahmad. It is so depressing and shocking for me to share that my brother has become drug addict. We all are very much worried. We don't know what to do.

Ali: This is really depressing! You should take action against it.

Ahmad: What should we do?

Ali: First of all, you should keep a check on your brother's company. The rate of drug addicts is increasing day by day in Pakistan. And the condition is becoming worst. Company is a major factor of drug addicts.

Ahmad: Yes, you are right.

Ali: Yes, once they come in touch with drugs, they soon forget their own business and become uncontrollable. So, you should consult a doctor or rehabilitation center for the treatment. The sooner it is done, it will be better for your brother.

Ahmad: Yes, we are consulting doctors for this.

Ali: You should also create awareness and guide your brother towards the right path. Have patience and you need a lot of hard work for this. But don't lose hope. Allah will find a way for your brother.

Ahmad: Ameen. Yes, you are right. We need to guide drug victims to right path with constant consultation and support. They need us right now.

Ali: You are right. Don't worry. We will find a way.

Ahmad: Thank you Ali.

Ali: No problem.
